EDITORIAL POLICY AND NOTES TO CONTRIBUTORS

AKSU journal of History and Global Studies (AJHGSS) is an international double-blind peer-reviewed interdisciplinary journal. In line with its multidisciplinary nature, AJHGS receives articles from scholars in the discipline of Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences such as History, Public Administration, Economics, Sociology and Anthropology, whose Research findings seeks to proffer socio-economic, political, legal, religious and environmental solutions to myriads of problems facing African societies in particular and humanity generally, and thereof to preserve man, his environments and civilization.

The journal accepts MLA Chicago or Turabian style of documentation where numbers are used correspondingly to disclose the sources of information consulted and placed at the last page of the article as endnotes. The APA style is not accepted. Manuscript submitted should be double-spaced throughout. Total word count should not exceed 8,000.

Manuscript will be sent out anonymously for editorial evaluation, so the author's name and affiliation should appear only on separate cover page. Manuscript should begin with an abstract of not more than 200 words.

All articles submitted for publication in the journal should use the British mode of spelling (not American). Submission of manuscripts to the AJHGS implies that it has not previously been published and that is not currently on offer to another publisher. AKSU journal of History and Global studies is published twice a year. Articles and books review should be submitted as email attachment, preferably in MS word to aksujournalhistoryglobal@yahoo.com The articles in AJHGS do not represent the views of the Department of History and International Studies. Hard copies should be sent to:
